

The chicks came home with me this weekend they didn't like travelling over all the speed humps in Handsworth Avenue and were very noisy. They have been very hungry and sleeping a lot, sometimes they sleep all together in a big pile and sometimes the girl chick sleeps in the food bowl!

I accidentally dropped a saucepan yesterday the loud noise made them jump so I don't think they will like it if I switch my washing machine or Hoover on- a great excuse not to do any cleaning this weekend.

They are now having their afternoon nap and looking forward to seeing you all again tomorrow so they can show off their new wing feather that have just started to grow.

Have a look at Mrs Lucas's class page to see some videos of the chicks hatching and hear how excited Mrs Lucas and I were!
