

LO: SETTING THE MOOD

Emotive writing

All writing has an emotion or 'mood'.

Today, we are looking at how to create a mood using vocabulary.

We will also look at how to use punctuation to help your reader perform your poem.

LO: SETTING THE MOOD

Steps to success

When writing Free Verse, you could use the following features:

Punctuation to help the reader

Adjectives, verbs and adverbs to enhance your work

Effective nouns and noun phrases

Repetition, onomatopoeia and alliteration

Similes and metaphors

Personification

Emotive language (mood).

How many of these poetry features can you use?

REMEMBER:

The skill is to use each feature for deliberate effect; don't put every feature in your poem just because you can!

LO: SETTING THE MOOD

What can you see?

Use phrases rather than words.

What 'mood' does this image create? (Some ideas are on the next slide).

LO: SETTING THE MOOD

What can you see?

Use phrases rather than words.

What 'mood' does this image create?

Words like lonely, eerie, empty and unnatural make you feel something so they are emotive words.

LO: SETTING THE MOOD

What can you see?

Use phrases rather than words.

What 'mood' does this image create? (Some ideas are on the next slide).

LO: SETTING THE MOOD

What can you see?

Use phrases rather than words.

What 'mood' does this image create?

Which words are emotive?

Have you used any emotive words or phrases?

LO: SETTING THE MOOD

What can you see?

Use phrases rather than words.

What 'mood' does this image create? (Some ideas are on the next slide).

LO: SETTING THE MOOD

What can you see?

Use phrases rather than words.

What 'mood' does this image create?

Foggy and dull

Lonely and cold

Sad, dark and gloomy

Wet and rainy

Which words are emotive?

Have you used any emotive words or phrases?

LO: SETTING THE MOOD

What can you see?

Use phrases rather than words.

Read the poem:

Fog

by Carl Sandburg

The fog comes on little cat feet.

It sits looking over harbour and city
on silent haunches and then moves on.

What poetry features has Sandburg used in his poem?

LO: SETTING THE MOOD

What do you notice about this poem?

Winter Poem by Nikki Giovanni

*once a snowflake fell
on my brow and i loved
it so much and i kissed
it and it was happy and called its cousins
and brothers and a web
of snow engulfed me then
i reached to love them all
and i squeezed them and they became
a spring rain and i stood perfectly
still and was a flower*

LO: SETTING THE MOOD

What do you notice about this poem?

Winter Poem by Nikki Giovanni

*once a snowflake fell
on my brow and i loved
it so much and i kissed
it and it was happy and called its cousins
and brothers and a web
of snow engulfed me then
i reached to love them all
and i squeezed them and they became
a spring rain and i stood perfectly
still and was a flower*

No punctuation and capital letters makes reading the poem difficult.

There are no strict rules about punctuation in poetry, but it helps your reader know how to read it out loud.

LO: SETTING THE MOOD

Noun phrases

How could we describe the cat?

How could we describe the tree?

The cat sat in a tree.

LO: SETTING THE MOOD

Noun phrases

evil, grinning cat and gnarly, old oak tree are noun phrases.

Which sentence is more poetic?
Why?

The cat sat in a tree.

The evil, grinning cat sat in a gnarly, old oak tree.

LO: SETTING THE MOOD

Noun phrases

Now write your own sentences about an animal of your choice using noun phrases.

The cat sat in a tree.

The evil, grinning cat sat in a gnarly, old oak tree.

LO: SETTING THE MOOD

Noun phrases

We're going to watch The School Bell by Frank Flynn.

Afterwards, the poet Craig Charles (who reads out the poem) talks about how the poet has used simile and metaphor to create images.

LO: SETTING THE MOOD

Noun phrases

Look at the cat sentence again.

The evil, grinning cat sat in a gnarly, old oak tree.

We can include a simile to increase the power of this image.

What does the cat remind you of?

The evil, grinning cat sat like the bringer-of-death in a gnarly, old oak tree.

We can try it as a metaphor.

The evil, grinning bringer-of-death sat in a gnarly, old oak tree.

Once we have the words, we can edit the sentence and take out any words that don't add to the 'mood' created by the sentence.

Evil, grinning bringer-of-death in a gnarly, old oak.

LO: SETTING THE MOOD

Task 1

Look at the sentences we have created.

Which do you like the best? Why?

- 1. The cat sat in a tree.*
- 2. The evil, grinning cat sat in a gnarly, old oak tree.*
- 3. The evil, grinning cat sat like the bringer of death in a gnarly old oak tree.*
- 4. Evil, grinning bringer of death in a gnarly old oak.*

LO: SETTING THE MOOD

Task 2

Now create your own sentences using noun phrases, similes and metaphors.

Remember to trim down the final sentence, because every word you use should be for effect in poetry.

Write three or four completely different sentences to describe the image of the Cheshire cat.

Challenge:

Can you put your sentences together to make a free verse poem?